A Letter from the President

Be a Game Changer for Student Success

As we all know, professional development is one of the key ingredients for addressing student success. The better prepared faculty and support staff are in meeting the challenges of student life and momentum of educational reform, the better the results are for all students. Becoming a member of NADE will position you as a major player in theory, practice, reform, and true growth in developmental education

NADE is the largest professional organization in the field of developmental education, and was established for those of us who are seeking ways to expand our professional knowledge and expertise. It's an organization that is able to provide current, ongoing support that is reflective of students' academic and developmental needs. It is comprised of practitioners and leaders in the field who work with students, conduct research, impact state legislation, and develop best practices in college-level instruction.

NADE membership includes the following benefits:

- Access to the JDE, Journal of Developmental Education, which is NADE's official publication.
- Access to a new professional journal, JARIHE, Journal of Access and Retention in Higher Education, written by practitioners for practitioners. The new journal is published and shared by Dr. John Craig from West Chester University of Pennsylvania.
- Access to The Digest (At members suggestion, it is being reformed so that we can share best practices more informally since we have the JDE and JARIHE for more formal research.)
- Networks (formerly SPINs) provide year-round support to you. They are led by experts in each specific Network. Feel free to join at any time of the year. You may join one or all of them – there are no additional fees; it's covered by your membership. Get in on their discussions and receive their newsletters:

The best way you can support your organization, and your professional needs, is by attending NADE’s Annual Conference. It is an economical and effective way to learn “what really works.” The bonus added is that the sharing and learning will continue, beyond the conference.

Please consider attending NADE’s 2019 Annual Conference in Atlanta, Georgia, March 6-8. This year’s theme, Prepared for Takeoff, is intended to provide you with support, motivation and inspiration. The Conference Committee has been working hard to develop a meaningful selection of workshops, keynotes and concurrent sessions that address current trends, advice and a wealth of best practices from our field. It is being hosted at the beautiful Atlanta Marriott Marquis. Some previews include:

- Dr. Carolyn Denard's keynote is "Preparing a New Toolkit for Student Success."
- Dr. Alex Madva's keynote is "Understanding and Overcoming Implicit Bias in the Classroom."
- NADE 2019 will offer keynote presentations, over 200 concurrent sessions, 35 poster sessions, 8 invited speaker for pre-conference institutes, and a study tour.

The need for sharing, learning and implementing best practices to insure student success cannot be over-emphasized. Join and attend NADE 2019 to help you meet your professional development needs – get recharged and inspired. Learn first-hand all of the support NADE has to offer you.

Thank you for all that you do for our students! Wishing you and your family a very Happy Thanksgiving!

Deb Daiek, NADE President

"The people who show up are the game changers. That's what we need: People who will show up, ready and willing to serve."
